

es in the FAME this year

Hall of Fame of New York. In 1900, an election was held in which Americans deserving of the twenty waiting places in the twenty waiting places. Elections were held in which nominations were in the elections of these were filled. Nominations were in order up to May were to be passed upon by in their respective fields were then to be sub- women of prominence for placed. All names re- election will again be eight Americans whose up at the top and bottom prominent whose names and who are again eligible are those of men and to be voted upon at the Horace Greeley, founder and editor of The New York Tribune, through which he wielded an unprecedented influence in the affairs of the nation.

Walt Whitman, author of "Leaves of Grass," and "Oh, Captain, My Captain," the latter written upon receiving news of Lincoln's death.

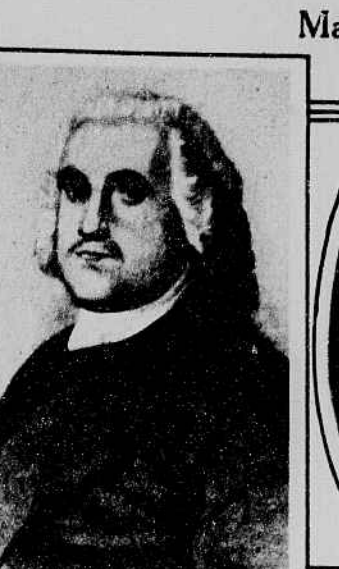

John C. Calhoun, American statesman, who held the office of Vice-President under both John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson.

Stephen Girard, philanthropist, who made his money in the shipping business and founded Girard College for orphans, in Philadelphia.

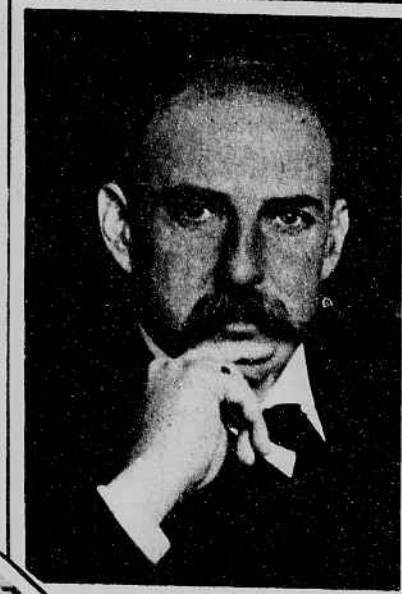

Edwin Booth, actor, whose Hamlet is said to be the greatest presentation of that character known to the American stage.

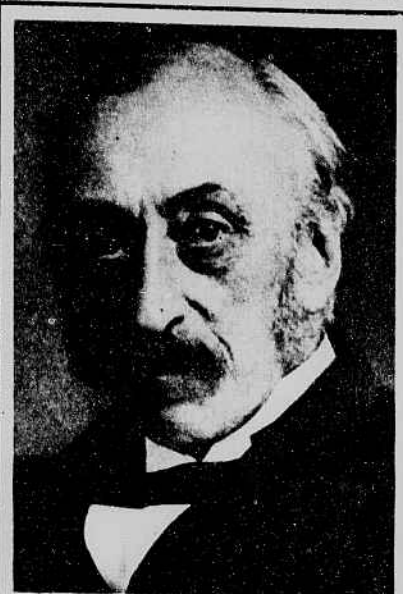

Roger Williams, one of the founders of Rhode Island, establishing a government founded on complete toleration.

F. Bret Harte, one of America's earliest short story writers, who wrote "The Luck of Roaring Camp" and the "Tales of the Argonauts."

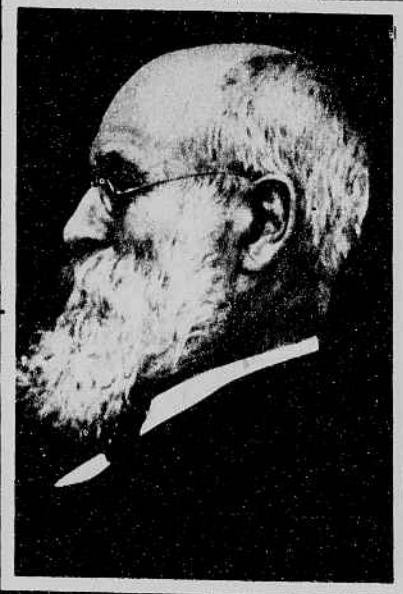

F. Marion Crawford, American author, a lover of Italy, who laid the plots of his best works in that land of sunshine and blue sky. His best known book is "The Heart of Rome."

Charles Eliot Norton, scholar and biographer. He was editor at one time, with James Russell Lowell, of "The North American Review."

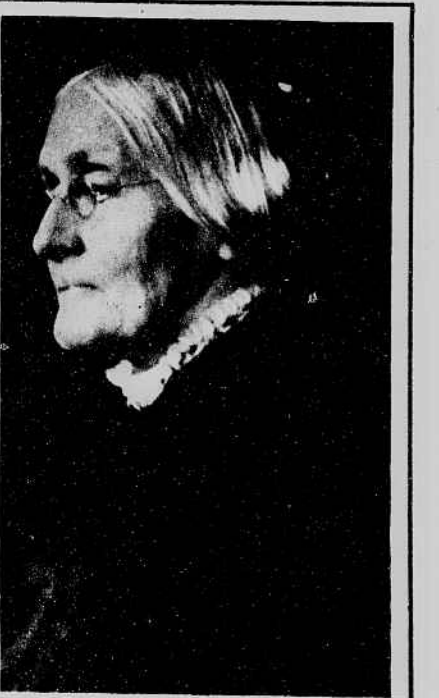

Left—O. Henry (William Sydney Porter), America's best loved short story writer—has been called the Guy de Maupassant of America.

Charles A. Dana, one of the most noted journalists of America, who for many years was editor-in-chief of "The New York Sun."

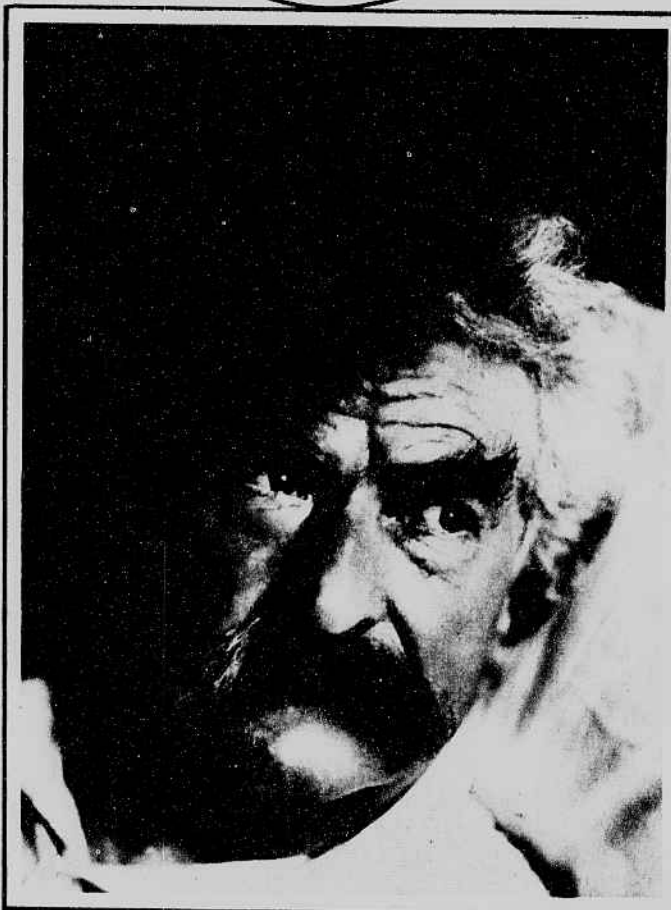

Susan B. Anthony, pioneer woman suffragist. With Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Miss Anthony edited the first newspaper advocating the rights of women.

Right—Ethan Allen, soldier and patriot, who captured "in the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress" Fort Ticonderoga (N. Y.), in a surprise attack with a handful of men.

Thomas Clark Durant, general manager Union Pacific Railroad, who devised the plan of linking East and West by rail.

Left—Mark Twain (Samuel Langhorne Clemens), famous American author and humorist, whose "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer" have endeared him to young and old.

Right—Grover Cleveland, twenty-second and twenty-fourth President of the United States, one of the most forceful executives who ever occupied the Presidential chair.

Left—Richard Watson Gilder, author and poet, editor of "The Century Magazine." He took an active interest in all public affairs tending to reform and good government.

New York University

Fifty-six prominent have already Hall of Fame—

SOLDIERS, SAILORS
David Glasgow Farragut
James Simpson Grant
Robert E. Lee
William Tecumseh Sherman

LAWYERS, JUDGES
John Marshall
Stephen Story
John Jay
John Adams

RULERS, STATESMEN
John Quincy Adams
James Madison
George Washington
Alexander Hamilton

MUSICIANS, PAINTERS, SCULPTORS, &C.
Thomas Jefferson
Abraham Lincoln
James Monroe
John Adams

Women Elected to Hall of Fame
Elizabeth Cady Stanton
Susan B. Anthony

AUTHORS
Walt Whitman
Stephen Crane
Henry James

LECTORS AND MISSIONARIES
John L. Stowe
William Lloyd Garrison
Frederick Douglass

WORKERS
Elizabeth Cady Stanton
Susan B. Anthony
Lucretia Mott

SCIENTISTS
Benjamin Franklin
Thomas Edison
Alexander Graham Bell

der Weyde, N. Y.

Noah Webster, famous lexicographer and compiler of the dictionary.

William H. Seward, Secretary of State under Lincoln. An attempt was made upon his life on the night Lincoln was assassinated.

Joseph Jefferson, actor, whose delightful performance of Rip Van Winkle is remembered as notable in his successful stage career.

John Ericsson, the inventor who designed the Monitor, that met and vanquished the Merrimac in the first fight between ironclad battleships.

Richard M. Hoe, American inventor, responsible for improvements in printing presses and the introduction of the first rotary press.

Nathan Hale, volunteer spy of the Revolutionary War, who when condemned to die said, "My only regret is that I have but one life to give for my country."

Sarah Margaret Fuller, critic and essayist, at one time literary editor of The New York Tribune.

